Bye-law 1: The Governance of ASCL (approved by ASCL Council June 2015)

- 1 The President supported by the Vice President and Immediate Past President (called the Presidential Trio) have been elected to oversee the work of the Association between Council meetings.
- 2 As elected Officers, the Presidential Trio act as a ministerial team, reporting to Council and by extension to Executive. Hence whilst discharging the crucial function of leading the process of shaping the work of the Association, the work of the Presidential Trio is directed by the decisions made by Council and Executive, to whom they are accountable.
- 3 The Presidential Trio carry out the performance management of the General Secretary as a group under the leadership of the President.
- 4 The President works with the Presidential Trio to ensure that decisions made by elected members are effectively operationalised by the Leadership Group and others. In this way the Presidential Trio act as the agents of elected members in ensuring that the decisions they make are effectively put into practice.
- 5 As well as ensuring the efficient functioning of the Association, the General Secretary provides continuity amidst the necessary cycle of changes in the identity of the Presidential Trio

- and Executive. Together their role is to establish relationships with policy makers, media and other significant figures within the education world in order to shape and influence national policy and to develop a strong team of employed officers who support the work of the Association.
- 6 The General Secretary is a significant part of ASCL's public identity, but not the single face of ASCL. The Presidential Trio and other Officers elected by Council also take a significant and high profile role in public affairs engagement.
- 7 A key part of the role of General Secretary and other senior Officers is to act as an enabler who facilitates the voice of members to be heard.
- 8 The General Secretary has a high public profile and the reputation of the Association with politicians, policy makers and press is dependent on the General Secretary's ongoing relationship with these groups. The General Secretary also looks inward to lead the workings of the paid staff to ensure that ASCL staff deliver the best possible service to members.
- 9 Acting as an enabler is central to the role of General Secretary, since it involves helping others to communicate policy clearly and creating opportunities for elected and employed Officers. By operating in this way the General Secretary and other Officers model the principles of ASCL's blueprint for a self-improving system. Whilst taking a leading role themselves they also create the environment that enables school and college leaders to be at the heart of system-wide transformation.
- 10 The respective roles of Council and Executive, the Presidential Trio and Elected Officers and the General Secretary and other senior staff are outlined below.
- 11 Council is the decision making body of the Association but as it is not practical or cost-efficient for it to meet more than three times a year, it is necessary for Executive and the Presidential Trio to play a significant role in developing and shaping decisions before they come to Council.
- 12 Agendas for Council and Executive will be rigorously scrutinised to ensure the meetings focus sharply on their core functions. Written reports will be used to provide information to these groups and will normally be received by exception to provide the space needed to discharge Council and Executive's key functions. Both Council and Executive have accountability functions to fulfil that will be discharged within this structure.
- 13 The Leadership Group use their expertise to advise Executive and Council in the process of policy formation, ensuring that it is robust and capable of effective implementation. Senior officers also have an important leadership role to play in communicating policy and influencing policy-makers. The Leadership Group acts at all times under the strategic direction of elected members and cannot as such delay or veto their decisions.
- 14 The functions of the Leadership Group and how they should support the work of Executive, who in turn operate under delegated powers from Council are set out overleaf:

Appendix G: Duties and Responsibilities of Trustees

Trustees are appointed by Council in accordance with Rule 13.2.2 to exercise trusteeship over all the properties and funds of the Association. Rule 18 of the Constitution covers the appointment and termination of the Association's Trustees as well as their broad responsibilities as Trustees.

The funds and properties invested in the names of the Trustees are under the control and at the disposal of the Executive in accordance with Rule 15.2. Individual Trustees of ASCL in pursuance of their role will not have any personal financial liability for decisions made and are indemnified by ASCL.

To assist them in their duties the Trustees of ASCL are authorised to take such professional advice in pursuit of their obligations under these rules as they see fit.

The trustees are members of the ASCL Audit and Risk Committee and may attend meetings of ASCL's F&GP Committee at the invitation of the Honorary Treasurer or on their request.

The trustees may at any time request specific information from the General Secretary or Director of Finance and Operations to assist them in their duties and obligations as Trustees.

Trustees must not accept personal benefits - a trustee cannot accept or direct any benefit from being a trustee.

The Association's Trustees are the people who have a general oversight of the operation of the Association and specifically its finances, ensuring that it is run in a professional manner so that it remains financially sound. Trustees have a duty to act collectively as decisions and responsibilities are shared. The Trustees can however act on a majority decision and will appoint a Chair for their meetings and general business.

The key duties of a Trustee can be set out as follows:

- Acting within the objects and powers of the ASCL constitution.
- Ensuring that the Association's assets and resources are used only for the purposes of the Association.
- Ensuring that ASCL adheres to the rules as laid out in the Association's constitution, trade union law and other applicable laws and regulations.
- Contributing to ASCL's ongoing consideration about the vision, mission and management of the Association, whilst recognising ASCL Council as the policy making and decision making body of the Association.
- Ensuring ASCL's compliance with its regulatory requirements and overseeing in conjunction with the Honorary Treasurer and Director of Finance and Operations the prudent management of ASCL's finances.
- To be consulted by the President/Honorary Treasurer/Director of Finance and Operations about any decisions significantly affecting ASCL's finances
- Safeguarding and protecting the assets of the Association.
- Acting in the best interests of the Association. Trustees must ensure that they do not allow their personal views or interests to override the interests of the Association and must avoid any conflict between their personal interests and that of the Association. Any conflict of interest must be disclosed to the Association.
- Ensuring that the Association is run for the benefit of members.
- Ensuring that the legal requirements for reporting, auditing and accounting are carried out.

Advising on the risks to the Association through the Association's risk register.

Appendix H: Complaints Policy

3 ASCL shall be unable to consider any complaint made outside of this period unless there are exceptionally compelling grounds as to why the complaint could not have been made within the specified time period eg illness, mental capacity. This is a matter for ASCL's sole discretion.

Section B: Informal concerns

- 6 Informal concerns should be raised either verbally or in writing and it should be made clear by members that an informal complaint is being raised at the time.

Section C: Formal complaints

- 7 If the outcome in response to any concern is not acceptable, members should lodge a formal complaint.

 - The Director of Finance and Operations, The Association of School and College Leaders, 130 Regent Road, Leicester LE1 7PG
- 9 Members should provide as much information as possible when setting out their complaint, in addition to supporting evidence. This enables ASCL to adopt a focused approach when addressing concerns which are raised.
- 10 Upon receipt of a completed complaint form submitted within the time limit specified in Section A, ASCL shall appoint an appropriate senior member of staff to investigate the complaint.
- 11 ASCL shall acknowledge receipt of the complaint within five working days of receipt.
- 12 ASCL shall then consider and investigate the complaint. During this period, the investigating officer may contact the complainant to discuss the complaint further.

- a) the outcome of the investigation; and

- 15 Complainants have a right to appeal the outcome of the formal complaint.

- 16 Any appeal request should be made within five working days of receipt of the outcome.
- 17 Subject to Section E, the appeal should be made in writing and should be marked for the attention of the General Secretary of ASCL. The General Secretary will appoint a person of appropriate seniority to conduct the appeal process.
- 18 Complainants shall receive the outcome of any appeal review within ten working days of ASCL's receipt. The appeal outcome shall be final.

- 22 Any appeal against the outcome of a formal complaint against the General Secretary shall be reviewed by the third member of the Presidential Trio and either ASCL's honorary treasurer or honorary secretary.
- 23 A written response to the appeal shall be sent within 20 working days.
- 24 Complaints arising from the General Secretary's decision in connection with an Appeal hearing under Section D of this document shall not be deemed a valid ground to lodge a complaint under this section.
- 25 Given professional commitments of the Presidential Trio, ASCL reserves the right to extend the periods within which a response to either a complaint or an appeal is provided. ASCL shall keep complainants notified duly of any delay to a response if anticipated.

Section F: Complaints against a solicitor

- 26 If the original complaint is about one of ASCL's in-house solicitors, the procedures to be followed are set out in Sections C and D above.

This document sets out ASCL's policy which:

- ensures that members receive the best and most appropriate support and advice with regard to employment matters
- ensures consistency and impartiality of service for all members
- ensures that the legal support budget is well managed
- ensures the proper use of Association funds
- ensures all stakeholders are aware of the policy and procedures
- ensures all stakeholders are aware of ASCL's complaints policy and how to access it

This policy is in accordance with, and must be read in conjunction with ASCL's Constitution and Rules July 2015.

Policy

Section A: Eligibility for support

- 1 Requests from members for advice and legal assistance are handled directly by the member support directorate. The following categories of membership are entitled to hotline advice, member support and legal assistance, subject to the remaining provisions of this policy:
 - Full Members working in the UK
- 2 The following categories of membership are entitled to hotline advice only but shall not be entitled to member support or legal assistance, subject to the remaining provisions of this policy:
 - Professional Associate Members
- 3 ASCL may offer advice and support to members regarding professional issues that arise during the course of their employment, provided that the member was in ASCL membership and that the membership department of ASCL are satisfied that his/her subscription was properly paid before the difficulty arose. Advice and support is offered within the terms of this policy.
- 4 Members who have received a first reminder of non-payment of their subscription renewal (60 days after it was due) will have access to ASCL's hotline but not to member support, legal assistance or referrals to ASCL's specialists in accordance with paragraph 5. If a second reminder is sent (30 days after the first reminder) no access to hotline will be possible until the subscription has been received.
- 5 In the event of a member being in arrears with the payment of his/her subscription, ASCL will be unable to continue to offer member support and legal assistance. If these have been withdrawn in such circumstances, ASCL will not normally be able to resume advice and support with regard to the issue when the subscription has been received, although this is a matter for ASCL's sole discretion.

Section B: Coverage

General

- 6 ASCL may institute, conduct, defend, settle or abandon any legal proceedings and such decisions will be taken with due care and diligence having sought advice where appropriate.
- 7 ASCL is committed to the proper use of its funds and to the support and protection of its members by providing them with appropriate legal advice and assistance with matters that concern their employment. This means that ASCL must use its funds prudently in order to avoid incurring disproportionate expenditure. In all cases, when determining whether to offer member support and legal assistance to a member, ASCL will have due regard to proportionality and the likelihood of success of any actual or contemplated proceedings.
- 8 Expenditure will not be made to establish a point of law unless ASCL considers that to do so will be of advantage to the membership as a whole.
- 9 Funds will not be used in order to achieve a very limited financial advantage for an individual member.
- 10 ASCL will not normally provide member support or legal assistance where the member has already instructed a solicitor, representative or other third party in connection with their case.

Period of membership

- 11 ASCL will only offer member support and legal assistance for issues originating from the period of ASCL membership, provided that the issue arises from the member's employment which is the subject of their ASCL membership. Member support and legal assistance will not be available in respect of those working in a self-employed or non-employee capacity, where members are expected to take out their own professional indemnity insurance instead.
- 12 ASCL will not be able to offer support with any legal or employment matters arising from events which took place or are alleged to have taken place prior to the member's having joined ASCL. In such a situation, ASCL may however offer pastoral support at the discretion of the Director of Member Support and/or the General Secretary.
- 13 ASCL may be able to offer advice and support to a retired member only if the issue is one that arose during the course of his/her membership or if an issue arises that originated during the course of his/her membership, subject to paragraph 12 above.

Nature of case

- 14 ASCL will only offer members support and assistance with matters relating to the member's personal contract of employment. ASCL will not provide advice or assistance in connection with the discharge of management duties.

- 15 It is not possible for ASCL to offer support to governors, schools or colleges as ASCL's function is to support its members in connection with their own employment.
- 16 In respect of management issues, ASCL's hotline, member support and legal assistance services are not a substitute for independent professional advice and members should obtain, and/or advise their employers to obtain, appropriate independent advice from suitably qualified and experienced professionals in such circumstances.

Conflicts of interest

- 17 Conflict between ASCL members in the same team sometimes occurs. Such situations will be carefully considered by ASCL. If a member's employment is potentially threatened by such a conflict, ASCL will offer support to him/her in order to try to resolve the issues. Each ASCL member in this situation, whatever his or her post, will receive the same high level of professional support. Should there be any conflict of interest between members, ASCL will, wherever possible, assign separate field or regional officers to advise and/or represent each party.
- 18 At all times, ASCL's staff will ensure that they have no conflicts of interest. ASCL's in-house solicitors will act in accordance with the Solicitors Regulation Authority handbook with regard to conflicts of interest.

Section C: Claims

Claims covered and exclusions

- 19 Subject to the remainder of this policy, ASCL may offer member support and legal assistance with matters arising with regard to:
- employment disputes
 - employment tribunal claims
 - representation before the National College for Teaching and Leadership (NCTL), Education Workforce Council (EWC), General Teaching Council for Scotland (GTCS), the Disclosure and Barring Service (DBS) and such other regulatory body which ASCL determines appropriate
 - work-related breach of contract claims which arise from the member's employment
 - contracts of employment
 - criminal defence arising from the member's employment (subject to paragraphs 24 - 29 and, where appropriate, further to advice from specialist advisers that a viable defence is available to the alleged criminal act(s))
 - litigation against the member connected with their work, subject to there being sufficient prospects of success in ASCL's reasonable opinion
- 20 ASCL is not able to offer member support or legal assistance with regard to:
- any legal matters or claims not arising in relation to the member's employment
 - proceedings for judicial review (whether such proceedings are actual or contemplated)

- proceedings for defamation (whether such proceedings are actual or contemplated)
- civil proceedings for protection from harassment, whether the member is either a prospective/named claimant or respondent to those proceedings
- with any other matter which ASCL does not consider to be an appropriate use of ASCL's funds

Employment tribunal and civil claims

- 21 ASCL will only offer member support and legal assistance in relation to any claims to, or defence of, employment tribunal or civil proceedings relating to a member's employment where ASCL considers such claims have reasonable prospects of success.
- 22 In the event that a member is a prospective or named respondent to employment tribunal proceedings, ASCL will only offer member support and legal assistance where the member's employer declines to provide the member with representation in relation to the same proceedings due to the operation of a statutory defence, or alternatively where the member's employer no longer exists and no policy of insurance or other indemnity exists to provide cover and representation for that member in the circumstances.
- 23 The provision of support under paragraphs 21 and 22 above is subject always to the expressly excluded claims set out in paragraph 20.

Criminal cases

- 24 Subject to paragraphs 25 - 29, ASCL may offer member support and legal assistance to members wishing to defend criminal allegations, charges or prosecution, provided that the alleged criminal conduct arises from and is connected to the member's employment which is, or was, the subject of their ASCL membership.
- 25 In relation to defence of criminal allegations, charges, prosecution or appeals against convictions/sentences, ASCL will not be able to offer member support or legal assistance where any of the following provisions are met:
- The member has admitted to criminal or other unlawful behaviour or
 - In the reasonable opinion of ASCL, the member has no viable defence to such an allegation/charge or
 - In the reasonable opinion of ASCL, the member has behaved with recklessness or with a wilful neglect of his/her duty
- 26 When considering whether ASCL can provide member support and legal assistance under paragraph 25 above, the case will be reviewed at the outset and at appropriate intervals during the tenure of any support provided to ensure continued compliance with the conditions of paragraph 25. Where matters come to light during the progress of a case which affect the viability of the member's defence or which demonstrate recklessness or wilful neglect on the part of the member, ASCL will inform the member and

ASCL must withdraw member support and legal assistance. In the event that a member pleads guilty to an offence/offences during the course of their criminal representation, ASCL will immediately cease member support and legal assistance in the member's case.

27 ASCL will not normally provide member support or legal assistance where the member has already instructed a solicitor in connection with the alleged offence.

28 In circumstances where ASCL decline to support, or withdraw its support, in criminal cases pursuant to paragraphs 25 - 27 above, ASCL may at its absolute discretion offer member support and legal assistance in relation to internal school employment processes against the member and any regulatory proceedings before the NCTL, EWC or GTC where they are connected with the incidents concerned. In such cases ASCL also retain the discretion to offer members pastoral support.

29 In the event of a member being arrested or called to a police station to be interviewed under caution, ASCL will endeavour to arrange for a duty solicitor or other legal representation which ASCL considers appropriate to be made available as soon as possible.

Personal injury

30 The basis of support set out in this policy will not apply to support given in relation to personal injury claims, in which case different arrangements will apply. In such cases, the procedures to be followed will be discussed with the member, ASCL and any external legal advisers that ASCL may advise to be appointed.

Authorisation to offer representation and bring/defend proceedings

31 In any civil claims (excluding employment tribunal and regulatory proceedings before the NCTL, EWC and GTCS) and in all criminal cases, decisions regarding whether ASCL will offer legal assistance or any decision to withdraw such assistance will be made at first instance by the Director of Member Support and/or General Secretary. Any appeal against this decision will be considered by ASCL's Legal Committee whose decision will be final and there will be no further right of appeal or complaint regarding the decision of the Legal Committee.

Section D: Conditions of support

Members' obligations

32 Members are obliged to promptly disclose all relevant information and documents/evidence relating to their case to ASCL as soon as reasonably practicable and must cooperate fully with ASCL in respect of any preparation and/or presentation of their case. The requirement to disclose all relevant information to ASCL exists both at the outset of the member's case and in respect of any further relevant information which becomes known to the member during the tenure of their case.

33 Where a member is represented by ASCL in connection with legal proceedings, either before proceedings have been issued/commenced or in respect of active proceedings, the member must not communicate or correspond with any other party about those contemplated or active proceedings unless and until they have sought ASCL's prior consent.

34 Any member seeking member support or legal assistance from ASCL must notify ASCL immediately upon becoming aware that they have a potential claim or dispute with their employer, face possible criminal investigation or prosecution, or where they have been referred to a regulatory body including the DBS, NCTL, EWC or GTC. ASCL may decline to support, or withdraw support, in relation to any case where ASCL considers the member has unreasonably delayed in informing ASCL of the circumstances or existence of that case.

35 Where employment tribunals feel it is appropriate, judicial mediation may be offered to the parties involved in a dispute. ASCL policy is to advise members to agree to judicial mediation whenever it is offered by the tribunals. If such advice is not accepted, ASCL may withdraw support at its discretion.

36 ASCL will be unable to continue to support any member who becomes threatening or abusive either orally or in writing towards staff (including ASCL staff and any external advisers) or who appears to be under the influence of alcohol or drugs, save for medications prescribed by a healthcare professional. ASCL's staff and any external advisers instructed by ASCL are entitled to be treated with dignity and respect; abusive and threatening conduct by a member will not be tolerated.

37 Members must cooperate with ASCL's requests for medical records and/or confirmation of the member's fitness to instruct ASCL, where ASCL consider appropriate.

External Advice

38 Advice will usually be given by ASCL employees including field and regional officers, telephone advisers, in-house solicitors and specialists. On occasion ASCL may, at its absolute discretion, feel it is appropriate to engage external professional or legal advisers, including external legal advisers or counsel. In such instances any external adviser will be instructed by and act under the direction of ASCL, who will consult with the member where ASCL determines appropriate. All papers, briefs, opinions and documents connected with such cases will remain the property of ASCL. Should it be necessary for papers or other information to be passed to external advisers, the member will be duly consulted and informed.

39 At meetings with external advisers, the member will be accompanied by either their field or regional officer and/or one of ASCL's in-house solicitors who will give the briefing to the external adviser and conduct all communication with them.

40 ASCL funds will not be used to pay the costs of any external advisers or other third parties for any consultations, instructions or proceedings undertaken without ASCL's specific prior consent.

41 Where ASCL decides at its absolute discretion to engage an external adviser, the selection of an appropriate external adviser will be a matter solely determined by ASCL. Legal representation will always be provided at first instance by ASCL's in-house solicitors, save where there is a conflict of interest requiring otherwise in accordance with this paragraph.

42 If a member decides to seek advice from, or to instruct, external solicitors/legal advisers, professional advisers or other third parties (whether or not such advice is paid for), the member must inform ASCL immediately. It is not acceptable for members to have advice coming from more than one source. In such an instance, ASCL may discontinue offering member support and legal assistance to the member. If member support or legal assistance have been withdrawn in these circumstances, ASCL will not normally be able to resume legal support of the case, although it is a matter for ASCL's sole discretion.

43 If a member wishes to pay for a second external legal opinion regarding his/her situation, and yet retain the option of accessing ASCL's legal support, he or she should immediately contact their ASCL regional or field officer or solicitor (as the case may be) before doing so. If a member's consultation with an external adviser or other third party results in a delay with adverse consequences, ASCL will not be liable for those consequences and in such circumstances ASCL reserve the right to discontinue legal support.

44 ASCL will consider very carefully a written second legal opinion obtained by a member but ASCL's in-house solicitors may not share the views expressed therein and if so shall not be obliged to act in accordance with them. In such a case the member may decide to dispense with ASCL's services or to accept ASCL's advice and to reject that given in the second opinion. ASCL will not reimburse members for the cost of obtaining a second opinion.

Costs

45 Subject to paragraphs 46 - 48, members will not normally be expected to contribute anything to the costs and expenses of any legal assistance provided by ASCL staff or external professional advisers commissioned on their behalf by ASCL. ASCL will normally settle all legal and professional bills for costs arising from ASCL's instruction of external advisers and any disbursements arising in connection with any proceedings brought by ASCL, subject to the same having been approved in advance by ASCL and arising from the period of ASCL's member support and legal assistance in relation to the member's case.

46 The prime concern of ASCL will always be to offer members appropriate legal assistance and member support and this will be in the context of the reasonable management of ASCL funds which are derived from members' subscriptions.

ASCL will be entitled to recover from the member all or any part of its expenditure on external legal and professional advice or fees (including issue fees and court fees) incurred on the member's behalf, in the event that the member recovers such expenditure as a result of action taken or supported by ASCL on the member's behalf.

47 Where ASCL offer support or legal assistance to a member in relation to any claim in the Employment Tribunals (including any appeals) or civil courts, ASCL will indemnify members' legal costs in the unlikely event that a costs order is made against the member. However, the member will remain liable to pay any award of compensation/damages which are either ordered against the member by a court in such proceedings or where the same form part of any settlement of the proceedings against the member agreed by the member.

48 ASCL's member support and legal staff spend a very significant part of their time negotiating and checking termination settlements (Settlement Agreements/Compromise Agreements) on behalf of a very small proportion of members. Frequently this involves very substantial sums of money. ASCL therefore makes a small charge to members for this service, such charge to be determined from time to time. ASCL will always seek to recover this charge from the member's employer, in which case it is possible that it may give rise to a small tax liability on the member. If a member wishes to seek legal advice from another source, paragraphs 42 - 44 will apply.

Section E: Refusal / withdrawal of support

49 At all times the member may decide whether or not to accept and follow advice given by ASCL and/or any external advisers instructed by ASCL. ASCL will discontinue member support and legal assistance, and is not obliged to re-offer the same at a later stage, where:

- A member decides not to follow ASCL's advice or that provided by an external adviser instructed by ASCL as the case may be or
- Declines the advice, support or representation of ASCL (where offered) in relation to any part or all of their case or proceedings.

50 In the event that the member fails to disclose relevant information to ASCL during their membership, furnishes incorrect or misleading information to ASCL, or on their application for membership fails to disclose any relevant information within the member's knowledge, ASCL will not provide member support and legal assistance or will withdraw such support and assistance.

51 A member shall cease to become entitled to receive member support and legal assistance if the member's interests are in conflict with those of ASCL or ASCL reasonably believes there is such a conflict.

52 No decision to refuse or withdraw member support and legal assistance will be taken without informing the member. Any decision to refuse or discontinue member support and legal assistance will be made at first instance by the Director of Member Support and/or General Secretary. Any appeal by the member against this decision will be considered by ASCL's Legal Committee whose decision will be final and there will be no further right of appeal or complaint regarding the decision of the Legal Committee. The member will be informed of the decision.

- 53 Upon the decision to refuse or withdraw member support and legal assistance being communicated to the member, the member will become liable to meet any costs, expenses or disbursements connected with their case and/or the instruction of external advisers or other third parties by the member incurred following the termination of ASCL's support and ASCL shall not be liable for meeting the same. ASCL shall not be liable for meeting any costs, expenses or disbursements arising in connection with a member's case, following the communication of the Director of Member Support and/or General Secretary's decision, during any period where an appeal is made by the member against that decision and that appeal is being considered by the Legal Committee, save where it is the decision of the Legal Committee to reinstate member support and legal assistance.

alike: this may include representing ASCL on a local authority, school or Trust Joint Negotiating Committee (JNC).

- When appropriate, they arrange local meetings to communicate with members and Council representatives about policies, issues, and concerns.
- They help to recruit to ASCL those newly appointed to senior responsibilities and to welcome new members.
- They may occasionally present ASCL's views on current issues to the media.

ASCL appreciates that those who volunteer to serve as local representatives are taking on additional responsibility and the Association will endeavour to keep their administration tasks to a minimum, and those required to ensure a consistent approach across the Association.

Section F: Complaints about support

- 54 If a member wishes to complain about the member support or legal assistance that she or he has been given by ASCL at any stage, the member must follow ASCL's complaints policy, a copy of which is available from ASCL upon request. Complaints regarding the refusal to, or withdrawal of, member support and legal assistance will be dealt with in accordance with paragraph 52 and no separate right of complaint in relation to these matters exists under ASCL's complaints policy.

Appendix J: Role of the Local Representative

Introduction

Historically ASCL determined its branches in line with local authority boundaries however going forward several of those fulfilling this local role will not be working in a single local authority area. As a consequence we are now using the generic term Local Representative as this will recognise those working as our representative in MATs or across a number of MATs as well as those working with a local authority. This does not preclude those still working in mainly LA school areas and working directly with the local authority form using the term Branch Secretary if that is the accepted local usage but ASCL will move to use the term local representative.

Overview of the Role

The local representative's role can be divided into five main areas.

- They communicate with regional officers and ASCL headquarters on matters arising locally, help to update members about ASCL policy and action nationally, and inform regional officers about individual local cases of concern.
- They serve as communicators/negotiators between ASCL members and other organisations on certain non-national policies and problems

The constitution was implemented on 1 January 1978.
